

End-of-Year Policy and Training Checkup

November 25, 2025

By Russell B. Berger and Sarah M. Sawyer

In this week's episode of OK at Work, attorneys Sarah Sawyer and Russell Berger from Offit Kurman discuss the importance of reviewing company policies and procedures as the year closes. With a focus on ensuring compliance and refreshing employee training, they emphasize the need for harassment and cybersecurity training, especially as flu season and holiday gatherings can lead to increased absenteeism and germ spread. Ensuring all employees are informed about current policies and best practices is crucial for a smooth transition into the new year.
