Bethesda, MD – 240.507.1740

Isaac Jacobson represents landlords and property management companies, providing counsel through the complexities of landlord-tenant law. His practice includes advising both large institutional landlords and individual property owners on matters that impact the stability of their properties and the success of their investments.

Isaac approaches his work with a clear, thoughtful perspective, particularly when guiding clients through disputes or transitions. He focuses on breaking down complex issues into manageable parts and shaping strategies that align with each client's goals. Clients appreciate his ability to cut through complications and provide straightforward guidance that helps them move forward with confidence.

A combination of academic achievement and community involvement shaped Isaac's path to law. He began his studies at Oklahoma City University School of Law, where he earned Dean's List honors for ranking in the top 25% of his class. His dedication to legal scholarship was recognized with two CALI Excellence Awards in International Law and International Criminal Prosecution, and he contributed as a staff member of the Oklahoma City University Law Review. After transferring to the Columbus School of Law in Washington, D.C., Isaac was elected Treasurer of the Middle Eastern Law Student Association. He received the Extra Mile Award for his service to the law school community.

Isaac's background shapes a client-focused style rooted in professionalism, empathy, and thoughtful attention. He recognizes that property disputes often bring financial and personal challenges, and he works to guide clients through them with steady support and practical solutions.

Outside his legal practice, Isaac enjoys exploring Washington, D.C.'s diverse neighborhoods in search of new coffee spots. He is also an accomplished pianist who finds balance and creativity through music.
