Timonium, MD – 443.927.2114

Megan Easter offers clients a thoughtful and modern approach to estate planning and family law, shaped by her nontraditional path into the legal profession and her commitment to helping individuals navigate some of life's most personal challenges. She works closely with clients to develop plans that reflect both their current priorities and their long-term goals, particularly young families and individuals seeking guidance in an evolving financial and familial landscape.

Megan's practice includes estates and trusts, family law, and general corporate and business matters. Her counsel is grounded in careful listening and an ability to identify the nuances of each client's circumstances. Whether advising on creating a will, guiding a family through sensitive transitions, or assisting with foundational business planning, she helps clients make informed decisions with clarity and confidence.

Clients value Megan's people-focused approach and her ability to recognize the unique dynamics that can influence legal decision-making. She strives to build meaningful relationships and ensures that clients feel supported throughout the process, especially during moments that may be emotional, complex, or deeply personal.

Born and raised in La Jolla, California, Megan now resides in Baltimore City. Outside the office, she enjoys exploring the city's neighborhoods, participating in recreational league sports, and cheering for the Baltimore Ravens.
