Neil A. Nowick is a principal attorney in Offit Kurman's Real Estate Practice Group. A seasoned practitioner with an extensive real estate practice complemented by comprehensive transactional experience, he focuses on complex matters involving the purchase, sale, financing, leasing and development of improved and unimproved commercial real estate properties. He counsels clients across multiple industries, including retail, hospitality and entertainment.

Neil has extensive experience representing landlords and tenants in sophisticated office and retail leasing transactions, including up-scale restaurant and high-end designer boutique leases. His clients have included private investors, managers, operators, developers, owners of major office and residential buildings in Manhattan, and owners and operators of hotels, clubs, restaurants and shopping centers.

Prior to joining Offit Kurman, Neil was managing partner of Dahan & Nowick LLP, a boutique real estate law firm, where he practiced for more than forty years. During law school at St. John's University, he was managing editor of St. John's Law Review and managing editor of The Catholic Lawyer.

Neil is also a member of The Association of the Bar of the City of New York and the New York State Bar Association.
