Nicholas (“Nick”) Eliades is an experienced commercial litigator who helps businesses resolve complex disputes efficiently and precisely. Nick represents clients across a broad spectrum of industries, including automotive, software, commercial real estate, food and beverage, architecture, and financial services. His practice focuses on delivering practical solutions that align with his clients’ business objectives, whether through early resolution or strategic litigation.

Nick has extensive experience handling high stakes matters in major metropolitan areas of New York and California. He has litigated business disputes, class actions, product liability claims, mass tort cases, and general liability matters. In addition, he regularly advises on contract disputes, including those involving commercial real estate transactions. His ability to navigate complex issues and anticipate challenges allows him to craft strategies that minimize risk and control costs.

With a unique background in the automotive industry, Nick has represented family-owned dealerships and financing companies in litigation and risk management. He understands the operational and financial pressures businesses face and works proactively to prevent disputes before they arise. When litigation becomes unavoidable, Nick is known for achieving favorable outcomes, whether through early dismissal, negotiated settlement, or trial.

Before joining private practice, Nick clerked for the Hon. Robert J. Gilson of the New Jersey Superior Court, Appellate Division, where he gained valuable insight into appellate advocacy and judicial decision-making. This experience informs his approach to complex litigation and reinforces his commitment to thorough preparation and persuasive advocacy.
