Offit Kurman Expands Commercial Litigation Practice with the Addition of Trial Attorney Mark Johnson

November 15, 2024

Offit Kurman is pleased to announce that Mark Johnson, an accomplished trial attorney with over 30 years of experience, has joined the firm's commercial litigation practice group. Mark's extensive background in construction, environmental, and real estate litigation adds significant depth to the firm's practice, reinforcing Offit Kurman's commitment to providing sophisticated legal solutions in complex disputes.

Mark has served as lead counsel in over 30 jury trials, bench trials, and intricate arbitration proceedings, representing a diverse range of clients—including owners, general contractors, subcontractors, and design professionals—in high-stakes litigation. His experience spans various matters, from construction defect claims to compliance and litigation under key environmental regulations, such as CERCLA, the Clean Air Act, and Proposition 65. Additionally, Mark regularly represents creditors in bankruptcy proceedings, particularly those with environmental damage claims.

Mark frequently shares his insights as a speaker and author on construction law topics, helping to advance industry knowledge and best practices.
