

OK at Work: Canadian Court's Ruling on Emojis

July 18, 2023

By Russell B. Berger and Sarah M. Sawyer

On this week's OK at Work, Sarah Sawyer and Russell Berger discuss what constitutes contract acceptance. In a recent case in Canada, a Canadian court found that an individual's use of a thumbs-up emoji in response to receiving a contract constituted his acceptance of the terms of the agreement. While the party that used the emoji argued that the thumbs-up emoji merely confirmed receipt of the contract terms, the court found, among other things, that this type of acceptance is the "new reality in Canadian society." Listen to learn more. ?