

OK at Work: Increasing Employment Litigation

July 7, 2021

By Russell B. Berger and Sarah M. Sawyer

Join Sarah Sawyer and Russell Berger on this week's episode of OK at Work where they discuss the increase they have seen in employment litigation over the last few months. Particularly now that many states have lifted COVID-19 states of emergency and more workers return to the workplace, employers should be taking steps to mitigate the risk of employment lawsuits, which are beginning to pick back up. Whether through proper management technique, strong policies, or taking steps to better prepare for terminations, Sarah and Russell discuss how employers can proactively reduce these risks.