

OK at Work: Overly Broad Non-Competes Agreements

June 13, 2023

By Russell B. Berger and Sarah M. Sawyer

Non-competes are making news headlines again after National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) General Counsel Jennifer Abruzzo issued a memo opining that overly broad non-compete agreements violate the National Labor Relations Act (NLRA) because they interfere with opportunities for employees to get new jobs. On this week's OK at Work, Sarah Sawyer and Russell Berger discuss the NLRB's memo and what it means for employers. Listen to learn more.
