

The Litigation Landscape Explained

March 4, 2025

By Russell B. Berger and Sarah M. Sawyer

In this week's episode of OK at Work, attorneys Sarah Sawyer and Russell Berger from Offit Kurman delve into the complexities of business litigation. They discuss various types of litigation that business owners might face, such as commercial arbitration, class actions, and equitable relief. The conversation highlights the importance of strategic planning, understanding different litigation forums, and early professional engagement to navigate the legal landscape effectively. Whether you're looking to avoid litigation or find efficient recovery paths, this episode offers valuable insights for business owners.